GOP Donors Perry and Simmons Arm Hance Scarborough's PAC

wo of the nation's top three political contributors quietly turned an Austin law firm's PAC into a political force.

Hance Scarborough LLP launched HS Law PAC in 2008 with just $20,794 from the firm. Its fortunes turned in 2010, when Texas' No. 1 contributor bought in. Houston homebuilder Bob Perry has given $150,000 to the PAC, which also bagged another $100,000 from Dallas billionaire Harold Simmons this May. The PAC has taken 84 cents of every dollar it raised from these two plutocrats.

Perry and Simmons are the nation's top Super PAC contributors after casino mogul Sheldon Adelson. Perry already has given $20.5 million to Super PACs this cycle, according to the Center for Responsive Politics; Simmons has given these no-limits PACs another $18.8 million so far. Perry spent $8.3 million to influence Texas' last state elections; Simmons spent $2.3 million.

Simmons' Waste Control Specialists, LLC lobbies to expand the grade and quantity of radioactive junk pouring into its nuclear dump in West Texas. Just since HS Law PAC formed in 2008 Waste Control has paid Hance Scarborough up to $460,000 to lobby in Texas and another $300,000 to lobby the federal government.

Waste Control formed its own PAC, WCS-Texas Solutions PAC, in 2011. TPJ filed a formal ethics complaint earlier this year alleging that Waste Control's fledgling PAC operated illegally. To legally contribute to political campaigns Texas PACs must have at least 10 contributors. TPJ's complaint noted that this PAC doled out $65,000 to candidates on behalf of a single $100,100 donor: Harold Simmons.

Four days after getting hit with the ethics complaint, Waste Control recruited nine company executives, flaks and lobbyists (including Hance Scarborough's Robert Floyd) to contribute $100 apiece to the PAC. That's all the money that the PAC has raised since—apart from another $250,000 from Simmons.

Neither Bob Perry nor his Perry Homes has retained Hance Scarborough lobbyists (the homebuilder relies on lobbyists at Locke Lord and HillCo Partners). Instead, Hance Scarborough lawyers have defended a couple of Perry-funded Republican PACs from charges of wrongdoing.

Hance Scarborough's legal eagles defended the treasurer of Tom DeLay's illegal Texans for a Republican Majority PAC (TRMPAC) from civil charges that he failed to report approximately $600,000 in corporate contributions to the Texas Ethics Commission.

A state judge ordered TRMPAC Treasurer Bill Ceverha to pay $196,600 in civil damages in 2005. This judgment prompted Bob Perry, TRMPAC's No. 1 donor, 1 to give Ceverha a personal gift of $100,000.2

Hance Scarborough defended another Perryfunded PAC from charges levied by 2006 Democratic gubernatorial nominee Chris Bell. After losing the election, Bell filed a lawsuit accusing Governor Perry and the Republican Governors Association (RGA) of violating state campaign laws by hiding the true source of a $1 million Bob Perry contribution. Case depositions revealed that Governor Perry's campaign officials solicited funds from then-RGA Chair Mitt Romney in October 2006. Two days later Bob Perry sent $1 million to the RGA, which flipped that same amount to Rick Perry in a transaction disclosed after the election.

The Perry campaign settled Bell's lawsuit for $426,000. Ruling that the RGA violated Texas campaign finance law, State District Judge John Dietz ordered the RGA to pay Bell $2 million in 2010.⁵ Hance Scarborough has appealed that decision to Austin's Third Court of Appeals (which also is reviewing Tom DeLay's criminal conviction).⁶

Hance Scarborough's PAC gave Third Court of Appeals Judge Melissa Goodwin $3,000 in 2011 (see table below); the firm also contributed $750 to Woodie Jones' successful 2008 campaign to be chief justice of that court. The PAC has given a total of $21,000 to Supreme Court Justices Paul Green, Eva Guzman and Debra Lehrmann (whose court would hear any further appeal of the RGA case).

Hance Scarborough PAC gave a total of $20,000 to Railroad Commission candidates Christi Craddick, David Porter and Barry Smitherman. Waste Control disposes of naturally occurring radioactive material generated by the energy industry. The Railroad Commissioners regulate that material.
